JC Board Elects Officers, Discusses Finances, Name

Hans Vogel Elected President At Group's Initial Meeting

Highlight of last week's first official meeting of the newly formed South Coast Junior College District was election of officers, discussion on the financing of the new district and the need for an official name for the new junior college.

Hans W. Vogel, of area two, was elected JC board president and Michael T. Collins, of area five, was elected board vice-president. Board member Louis J. Zitnik, of area 3, was elected official board clerk and Patrick J. Backus, of area 4 was elected representative for the County Committee.

Several suggestions came from the floor on the financing of the new college and Ernest Norton, of the County Schools Office, was used as research person on answering some of the technical questions. Jack Roper, of the County Schools Office, is presently assisting the board as a coordinator until a secretary and president are appointed.

Considerable time was given by the board, and the 17 member audience, on the naming of the new college. The board expressed a desire for an official name that would weave the JC area together without giving special recognition to any one area. The board is interested in receiving a name from the public, or anyone concerned, that would be adequate.

Regular board meetings are scheduled for the first and third Tuesdays of the month at the new Mission Viejo High School at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend and participate in all meetings.

Pony League Has Open Registration

The smattering of professional baseball players still holding out on the '67 contracts may find it hard getting back in the ranks, but local horsehiders can still register with no problem for the Tustin Pony League.

Registration for boys born between August 1, 1952 and July 31, 1954 will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. through 4 p.m. in the all-purpose room at C.E. Utt School.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO ME, happy birthday to me. Editor and publisher Carl E. Venstrom's daughter, Lora Lynn, celebrated her first birthday in the RANCHO REPORTER city room Saturday, much to the awe, amusement and distress of our employees. Lora doesn't know how to read the only local paper yet, but she thinks its delicious.

Citizens Group Appeals To Local Citizens To Help Finance Tustin Athletic Program

A citizens group striving to maintain athletic programs at Tustin, Foothill and Mission Viejo High Schools is appealing to all families in the Tustin Union High School District to assist in the community effort.

A letter explaining the "Sports For Your Kids" plan, initiated by booster club members of the three schools is being sent to parents of all students attending high schools in the district.

The plan submitted by the citizens committee to finance athletic programs of the schools through private donations was approved last week by school board trustees. Officials of Crestview League were then notified of the schools' intent to compete.

In the short time, since booster club members of the three schools formed the committee, $20,010 in cash has been contributed toward the fund needed to underwrite the athletic program. This was donated by 236 families and business firms. The group has a goal of $49,009.

The letter notes that "due to the brief time which the committee had to obtain trustee and league approval, members could not contact everyone who wants to participate in the program. Since learning of the fund, many people have called committee members offering their support.

"We know there are many families in the district who want to aid in this plan to 'Save Our Sports.' The role of athletics in building character, preventing juvenile delinquency and contributing to community betterment cannot be emphasized too strongly."

Persons wishing to aid in the effort are being asked to send contributions to Sports For Your Kids, P. O. Box 341, Tustin, California.

Heading the "Sports For Your Kids" committee are George Dicks, Bob Hoyt, Bill Hormuth and Rod Graves.

The situation was created when trustees decided to eliminate athletic programs in order to balance next year's budget following defeat by voters of a tax override proposal.

NATURE'S PHENOMENON

Capistrano Tourists Swallow Bird Tale

By April Davis

"It took my father 40 years to swallow this."

. . .and it may take the unbelieving tourists who flock yearly to San Juan Capistrano and nestle along the old cathedral wall to eagerly peep at the returning birds even longer to accept the phenomenon of the swallows' return to Capistrano.

"Si," caroled mission groundskeeper Francisco Velasques, "My father worked here for 40 years, and my grandfather before him. We have seen this. We have seen the swallows come back each year on March 19.

"Look, there are some scouts now," he chirped, flying to the open doorway to get a better view. "You know," he continued, "there are fewer swallows returning to Capistrano each year. The birds eat insects on the fly, and insecticides have killed a great quantity of their food.

"It's no joke," he continued. Perching on a ledge he related the story of the swallows' return. "The time of the swallows' arrival varied from before sunrise to sunset, but they always come during the 24 hours of St. Joseph's Day, March 19.

"Immediately after their return to the Mission the swallows begin repairing their old nests and building new ones. Mission attendants provide mud from the old cemetary hill for this purpose. When young birds are hatched, the older birds, after feeding and caring for them a short time begin giving them instructions in flying.

"After the summer the swallows take flight again on the day of San Juan, Oct. 23. No one is certain where they come from or where they go. It is rumored that they spend the winter in Central or South America.

"Actually," he chortled, "having a day for the swallow is not too unusual. Last Wednesday was Buzzard Day in Eakley, Ohio."

First JC Board Meeting Has Good Participation

The first official meeting of the recently formed South Coast Junior College District took place last week at the Mission Viejo High School.

The agenda was logical, the participation--both by the audience and all five board members--was well balanced and all in all, the new board got off to a good start.

Election of officers took place with Hans W. Vogel being elected president of the board and Michael T. Collins being elected vice-president. Official clerk appointment for the board went to board member Louis J. Zitnik. Board Member Patrick J. Backus was also elected to represent the new JC board at the County Committee.

There were approximately 17 people in the audience, including the press. But a good number of these 17 people took part in the board's business. President Vogel looked to the audience for participation and received constructive suggestions from the floor.

Ernest Norton and Jack Roper, of the County Schools Office, was there to help the new board in some of the technicalities of getting a JC board off the ground.

The total participation at this board meeting was excellent. We hope the new JC board will continue to operate in this democratic fashion. The result will be good communication with the public, and thus will result in good understanding by the public what they are trying to do.

Congratulations, board, for your first meeting.

What's In A Name?...

Answer: "Plenty."

One of the immediate problems faced by the new JC board is creating a name for the college. The board members, at last week's meeting, felt the pressure of agreeing on a name -- for the purposes of communication, letterhead, official documents, etc.--yet held off until they had the right name.

The need here is for a name that will tie in the total JC district together without letting one particular area dominate the official name. Probably the best name that came from the floor at the meeting was "Old Saddleback," but the board, and the audience, thought something was lacking.

Do you have any ideas for a good name. If so, contact President Vogel or this newspaper. A name is needed here that is original, unique and that will tie together a large, sprawling area that is presently called -- for lack of a better name -the South Coast Junior College District.

A name is important and lasts for a long, long time. Let's get a good one.

LETTERS To Editor

Dear Editor,

Bravo! Thanks for your column "Reflections" By Roshan Sharma! His style is unique and his writing refreshing! I find myself turning to his column first thing every Wednesday. His views and outlook on the American way of living as opposed to life in India is very interesting. Especially enjoyed his columns on garbage cans and the American bathroom. Hope we see a lot more of his writing in the future.

Dear Carl,

Thank you for last week's article in the RANCHO REPORTER on my running for one of the two openings on the Tustin Union High School District's board. The article was informative and expressed well what I stand for as a board candidate for the high school district.

This is to let any clubs, groups or organizations in your circulation know that I am glad to appear before them for a three to thirty minute speech on why I am running for the board. Or, I should be happy to appear before any organization to just answer questions on my platform, policy and what I would do if elected to the high school board.

I am particularly interested in reaching the residents in the circulation of the RANCHO REPORTER. Interested parties may reach me at the telephone and address given below.

'Charter' El Toro Staff Sergeant Returns for Last Tour of Duty

Sergeant Bell, Who Recalls Founding Of Base, Slated To Retire In Orange County On March 31

A Marine staff sergeant, who was assigned duty at El Toro when the Air Station consisted merely of a single police shed, recently returned here for his last tour of duty.

Staff Sergeant Lloyd R. Bell began his military career here some 25 years ago, five months prior to the commissioning of the Air Station in 1942. He was one of the first 50 Marines serving duty in Orange County.

"When we first arrived here," he recalls, "El Toro consisted of only one building -- the old police shed where the Hostess House now stands."

He remembers that one of the first duties assigned to those 50 Marines was planting the shrubbery that now surrounds the commanding general's quarters.

Sergeant Bell, who is slated for retirement on March 31, plans to retire in Orange County, which he considers the best of all locations his military career has led him to. The sergeant recalls that El Toro troops were once billeted at the Irvine Ranch headquarters and ate meals in civilian restaurants in the Santa Ana area.

Later, Barracks #58, one of the Station's oldest structures, was erected to house the "first fifty." A messhall was constructed near the barracks -- it now serves as the Station Dependents' Clinic.

Although he now serves as a quality control chief with the Third Marine Aircraft Wing here, Sergeant Bell hasn't always been associated with Marine Corps aviation. He entered the field while assigned to El Toro in 1960, his second tour here.

In addition to combat during World War II, Sergeant Bell has recently served two tours of duty in the war-torn Republic of Vietnam.

Join Group For A Song

Aproposed local chapter of Sweet Adeline met for the first time Thursday night and 11 ladies were indoctrinated to the policies of the national organization--then split up into groups for a little harmonizing.

Sweet Adeline chapters meet, the nation over, regularly, for women of all ages to join together in song--Mrs. Bunny Hammer and Mrs. Patsy Recht figured we ought to have one too.

So Mrs. Recht invited the women into her home Thursday and the initial response was "warming."

She will open her home to all local songstresses again tonight at 7:30. All future meetings, the ladies decided last week, will be held on Monday or Wednesday.

They are currently putting forth an effort to get a hold of a school room to meet in.

"But," she mentioned sadly, "nobody came from Mission Viejo. You'd better tell them to get on the stick."

If you'd like to join the community chapter for a song call her at 837-0737. Or feel welcome to surprise her by dropping in tonight at 24541 Ansdell Circle, El Toro.

REFLECTIONS...

INDIAN ELECTIONS-1967

The world's largest democracy, India had another great election that lasted for six days. It took another fourteen days before the results could be gathered. About 151 million voters exercised their rights.

To every one's surprise, the elections were peaceful and yet colorful. People dressed in bright colored clothes came to the polls in highly decorated bullock carts to vote against many detestable candidates.

In contrast about 70 million American voters drive to the nearest poll, only a few blocks away. By the time they go to bed the same day, they already know whether their favorite candidates have been elected.

The results of the Indian elections were very zestful. Many favortite central government ministers got booted out. Krishana Menon who despised America also lost his seat in the parliament and his cane. I should advise him to emigrate to America as Americans are very forgiving.

The Congress party which has ruled India for 20 years with much confusion and arrogance barely got 271 seats out of a total of 521 seats in the parliament. Their chances of keeping their cabinets are good only in half of the 18 States and Union Territories.

Many editorials in American papers suggest that good days are coming in India as the opposition to the Congress party is becoming strong. But they forget that most of the opposition parties, which number more than twenty, hate each other.

India could become like Pre-De Gaulle France when each government lasted for a month or so. If that happens, Krishana Menon would like to become India's De Gaulle. I hope that the Indians are wiser by then.

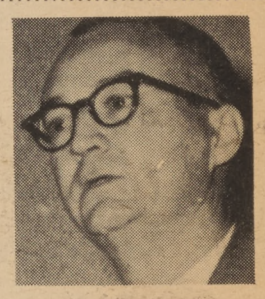
BLUE CHIPS...



Last year, fiscal and monetary policies were designed to restrain inflation. It is now obvious that those policies are being reversed.

Washington, in maneuvering the economic factors, must consider classic economic forces. These forces have been repeatedly active in the cyclical history of our economy.

The inventory situation is the primary economic force which comes to mind in the current situation. Inventories pile up when sales to consumers are not as great as expected. The higher the rise in inventories, the more severe the adjustment will have to be.

In recent years, business has been producing goods more rapidly than they have been consumed. The rising trend in sales is slackening and production capacity is excessive. This capacity, plus rising labor costs, is creating competitive pressures on prices and profit margins.

It appears likely that the government will ease credit even more than recently. The Administration's 6 percent surcharge on corporate and personal income taxes will probably be abandoned.

The stock market, in recent trading, seemed to be influenced by the tax news. The President's decision to ask Congress to restore the 7 percent Investment Tax credit created a heavy demand for stocks on the day following the announcement.

Investors in the securities of American corporations are interested in both long-term and short-term factors. The foregoing discussion pertains to short -term. Next week, we shall take a look at the seventies.

'Moral Re-Armament' Movement Spans Time, Space

"You have to pay the price. You have to sacrifice."

With these lyrics students across the nation and around the world spread an idea. This idea, established in 1914, has adopted the name of Moral Re-armanent.

The world-wide group feels that it "speaks for the young generation of citizens who want to demonstrate a love of country and an enthusiasm to give their lives to great aims and purposes."

To spread the word of their idea, Moral Re-armament utilizes three methods; a magazine titled "Pace." A sing-out program touring campuses of the nation and the world, and world renowned speakers.

"Pace," a monthly publication, emphasizes these "youth on the move."

"I think there are a lot of magazines that can give sensation and success," Robert Fleming, Pace editor explained, "but our whole aim to attempt to architect an exciting life that is really going to work.

"Our staff, who is young, is taking a responsibility with our magazine, and they are given a duty far greater than a magazine of similar size.

The Sing-Out, an extension of the idea, travels across the nation singing the philosophy in a moving beat. The group has been invited by leaders of many of the major nations to tour their countries.

Returning this week from a successful three week tour through Hawaii, the Sing-Out is currently traveling across the nation to appear in Washington D.C.

Last year the group performed to national statesmen in the capital. The response was so great that 160 Senators and Congressmen invited the cast for a return performance.

The world of Moral Re-armament is being carried by such dedicated speakers as the late Peter Howard. Howard appeared before many state legislatures, international leaders, and U.S. campus audiences.

No member of the idea is paid for their service. "I have not had a salary in 20 years," one leader of the finance staff related.

The whole idea and dedication of Moral Re-armament can be expressed in one of its loveliest songs from which the title was taken from Chancellor Conrad aAdenauer when he addressed Sing-Out '66 in West Germany --"Keep Young at Heart!

How many of you are aware of our growing Orange County Airport.

Well, the latest addition has been a real time saver to those people who have to fly to Northern California very often. Air California has five scheduled Electra Jet round trip flights a day between Orange County and San Francisco. According to Michael McFadden, airlines official, the demand has been so great that they are adding two more round trip flights making a total of seven flights daily.

The many businessmen who have traveled this airlines to date all agree that it took longer on the ground between Orange County and International Airport than it did in the air to San Francisco.

Wouldn't it be fun to hop on a week-end flight, and enjoy the big city all for thirty dollars round trip. Or better yet tell hubby you are going into the city for a days shopping and that you will be home in time to fix dinner.

The stewardess uniforms are very cleverly designed depicting the early spanish rancho days of California and yet ultra vogue in their styling, with the dominate color being orange.

Any more information you might want concerning Air California, can be obtained by writing 4400 Campus Drive, Newport Beach, or calling 540-3220.

Some of us have had our television sets for an awfully long time and it won't be long before we have to replace them. Laguna Hills Television, owned by Vincent La Vertu, is located right next door to the El Toro Post Office and has many shapes and sizes of televisions to choose from.

Zenith is the brand Mr. LaVertu has chosen to stock, for he claims they only manufacture quality machines. He also offers a new resident service for hooking up your television sets at a very nominal fee.

When you purchase an item that will eventually need service calls, it is wise to buy right in you own area, for prompt consideration. Mr. LaVertu prides himself on this matter, for many of his new customers have been referred to him by his already satisfied buyers.

You can spot Laguna Hills Television Service in your area by their truck that drives in and out of your neighborhood daily. His phone number is written across it and says 837-0618.

So when it comes time to buy a new television set, you should look for it close to home, and that would be Laguna Hills Television Service, 23582 El Toro Road, El Toro.

COLOR IT HOME--Prospective home buyers and residents of Capistrano Highlands in Laguna Hills learn about the impact of color in decorating homes from design consultant Pat Wright, standing. The program was one in a series of Hospitality House events being offered by Macco.

Capistrano Highlands Women Attend Program With Cal State LA Decorating Consultant

Homeowners and prospective home buyers who attended a Hospitality House program on interior decorating last week in Capistrano Highlands were instructed in the use of creative interior decoration, with the emphasis on color.

The program, highlighting ideas to individualize and customize homes, was conducted by interior design consultant Pat Wright, who currently teaches interior design at Cal State, Los Angeles and has recently completed two educational films on the subject.

"The development home offers an exciting opportunity to use the psychology of color in the home to build and complement the individual family feeling -whether it be one of aesthetics, sports, family traditions, or purely functional." said Miss Wright, who is a member of the National Society of Interior Designers and American Women in Architecture.

"Don t be afraid to use bold colors and an interesting mixture of textures. It is very important to incorporate some patterned fabrics as a contrast to plain color surfaces in each room," commented Miss Wright as she demonstrated with a vivid array of fabrics, the decorating possibilities of the one story, split level and two story homes offered in Capistrano Highlands.

The program was one of a continuing series of Hospitality House presentations of interest to homemakers held in Macco Realty Company developments, supervised by Shirley Collins, home economist for Macco Leadership Homes and under the direction of Robert H. Richards, the firm's director of merchandising and sales.

"The large group of interested homemakers who attended the Capistrano Highlands program demonstrates the tremendous drive that women have today to create beauty in the home," said Mrs. Collins.

Capistrano Highlands will contain 2,200 homes and four parks for the exclusive use of residents, when completed. Homes are offered in eight spacious floor plans with 29 exterior designs, priced from $25,650 to $31,250 with long term financing.

Hundreds of orchid blooms and plants, all valued at $6,938, have been donated to the University of California, Irvine by the Westenberger Orchid Company of San Fernando.

Professor Joseph Arditti, of the UCI department of organismic biology, said the valuable plants will be used both in instruction and research.

A specialist in the physiology and biochemistry of orchids, Dr. Arditti is conducting research into inheritance patterns and pigmentation of the plants and flowers, and into the peculiar ability of the orchid to control fungus growth.

The Westenberger donation is the latest in a series of gifts by commercial and amateur growers which are aiding in the research.

Methodist Minister Gives Thoughts On Holy Week

James D. Stewart
University Methodist Church

I was guilty of eavesdropping the other day.

My guilt did not come about because of deliberately listening in on anothers conversation. I simply could not help but hear what was being said. The person was talking about Good Friday and made the statement that if you ever went to Church Good Friday was certainly a good time to go.

After thinking about it for a while, I agree. Good Friday is a perfect day for attending Church and, I might add, so is Easter Sunday.

Holy week is a sacred time for the Christian community. It is not sacred because we make it so, it is sacred because of the action of God that happened on behalf of mankind. We should remember the significant love of God in a human act of courage and concern. Here was one who lived the life of perfect love but was rejected by the people.

Love is just a word to many people today. We simply do not know what it means. Many within the Christian community do not understand the true implications of what it means to love.

Holy week is a good time for us to experience through worship, meditation and prayer the meaning of love as it has come from God to man through Jesus.

Yes, Good Friday is a good time to go to Church. So is Easter Sunday. For this week that we call Holy will only be Holy for us if we remember the love of God.

The love that has come in Jesus. If the love of God is really real to us then we must pass it on. This is a good time of the year to renew our relation to God and to improve our love for our fellow man.

We Believe...

The RANCHO REPORTER has dedicated this page of our edition entirely to local churches in order that our readers might be more aware of just what this week of holiness means and what is going on in our circulation area.

We would like you to take a little time out from your busy schedule right now to think about what this time of the year means to you.

Regardless of your convictions concerning religion just stop for a moment, if you will, and meditate on why your children are not in school today. Realize why everyone is getting dressed up Sunday and traveling to relatives, friends and neighbors homes for special feasts.

Why not visit one of our fine local churches this week and hear the special messages. Commemerate with the people of your communities.

St. George's Episcopal Plans Commemoration Week

Tomorrow is Maudy Thursday, the day which commemorates the institution of the Lord's Supper, known to Christians the world over as the Holy Communion, the Mass and the Holy Eucharist, will be marked by two celebrations of this central act of Christian worship at St. George's Episcopal Church, El Toro Road and Whisler Drive in El Toro, at 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. according to the Rev. Frederick C. Hammond, Vicar.

On Good Friday the Vicar will give a series of meditations on "Words From The Cross" during the traditional three hours service from 12 noon until 3 p.m.

These are the hours that Jesus hung on the cross and they have been the time of special meaning for Christians for two thousand years. At 8 the Vicar will lead the congregation in meditations on "The Way of the Cross."

St. George's Church door is unlocked from nine in the morning through nine at night to allow any and all persons to do so, to enter for rest, prayer and meditation. Tracts and pamphlets are available in addition to the Book of Common Prayer and the Hymnal.

Easter Day services will begin with a sunrise celebration of the Holy Communion at 6:30 a.m. Choral Eucharist and sermon will follow at 8, 9:30 and 11 a.m.

In the afternoon, children and adults will gather for the annual ingathering of their missionary self-denial mite box offerings and to deck the Easter cross, made especially for the occasion by Leisure Worldite, Albert Cooper, with bouquets and garlands of flowers.

The Vicar announced that St. George's is in the community, to minister to the community, and is therefore open to any person who desires a church home or simply a place to go from time to time during the week for a period of rest, meditation and refreshment.

Twin Services Geneva Offers

Geneva Presbyterian Church of Laguna Hills announces duplicate services at 9 and 11 a.m. at its temporary quarters at Leisure World Clubhouse 2 on Moulton Parkway near El Toro Road.

Music will be supplied by the Geneva choir making its debut under the direction of Don Rohrer, augmenting the quartet.

The sermon, to be delivered by Dr. Caldwell, will be on "The Eternal Hope."

Easter Evening Fellowship for all members will be held in Clubhouse 1 at 7 a.m. A program of vocal and instrumental music will include selections by Keith Mel, bass, and Ben Ritzenthaler, instrumentalist.

A devotional meditation titled "A Journey in the Afterglow of Easter" will be given by Dr. Caldwell.

Marine Vet Takes Over As El Toro's Chaplain

Navy Lieutenant Commander Joe H. Morgan assumed the duties of Protestant Chaplain at the Marine Corps Air Facility Monday.

Chaplain Morgan succeeds Navy Lieutenant Charles F. Stolzenbach who will report to Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, for duty with the Fifth Marine Division.

Chaplain Morgan's service with the military dates back to the days prior to his ministry when he was serving with Navy Utility Squadron Two in Hawaii.

On Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor, then an aviation ordnanceman third class, Chaplain Morgan found himself manning a machinegun mounted inside an airplane on a warm-up mat at Ford Island.

During the attack he remained at his position for 24 hours until replacements arrived.

In 1945, he became interested in missionary work and helped establish the first Baptist Church on the Island of Maui. He taught Sunday School and worked with Navy Chaplain John Craven, who is now a Navy captain and the present chaplain of the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific at Camp H. M. Smith, Hawaii.

Upon completion of his enlistment in 1946, he attended Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, Oklahoma, graduating with a Bachelor of Arts Degree.

He then attended the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas where he dedicated his life to the call of the ministry."

After completing his education he returned to the Island of Maui in 1954 to become pastor of the Wailuki Baptist Church, where he resided between 1942-45.

In March 1962, the chaplain returned to active duty and attended the eight-week Navy Chaplain School at Newport, R.I. Since then he has served at Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton with the Third Force Service Regiment on Okinawa, the First Marine Division at Camp Pendleton and with Destroyer Division 192 at Long Beach.

UCI Merman In NCAA Meet

Anteaters Journey To Commerce For Championships

Next stop, Commerce, California....and the NCAA college division swimming championships.

That's the event the Anteaters of the University of California, Irvine have been waiting for since October 1965.

"If we're not ready now, we never will be," was the flat appraisal from swimming coach Al Irwin as his 17 man squad went through final preparations for the three-day, 18-event championships, March 16-17-18.

Five seniors, two juniors, six sophomores and four freshmen compose Irwin's fine squad which compiled a 9-3 dual meet record, including the spectacular 73-31 pasting of defending NCAA swimming champion San Diego State.

The three losses were at the hands of USC, UCLA and UC Berkeley.

From all indications, 13 team members will be in for most of the work, and this doubling up could cause the Anteaters some problems. Despite a slight lack of quantity, UCI will go in with plenty of quality.

Leading UCI into its first NCAA tournament competition in any sport will be seniors Dave Belknap (Fullerton), Bob Nealy (Corona del Mar), Pat Glasgow (Corona del Mar), Randy Howatt (Corona del Mar), and Dave Kelly (Anaheim).

Belknap scored 115 points to lead the Anteaters during the regular season. He was followed by Jon Van Cleave's 110 points and Glasgow's 97. Van Cleave is the only member of the team who is not eligible to compete in the collegiates.

Sophomores will have a great deal to say about how UCI fares at Commerce. Second-year men Bob Wilhite (Costa Mesa) , in one and three-meter diving; Dave Smith (Newport Beach), in backstroke, freestyle and relays; Bob Sharp (Buena Park), in butterfly and medley relay; and Pete Stys (Laguna Beach, in breaststroke and medley relay are key figures for Irvine.

Junior Bill Leach (Corona del Mar) also is being counted on heavily in 500 and 1650-yard freestyle events and medley and freestyle relays.

Freshman speedster Steve Farmer (Newport Beach) will team with Smith and Belknap in the sprints and relay events.

Sophomores Pat Fergus (Anaheim) and freshman Rich Charnley (Santa Monica) will be alternates in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle events. Freshman Ferdie Massamino (Fullerton) is extremely doubtful because of an injured back and sophomore Gary Springer (Costa Mesa) probably will not compete in the distances.

The first twelve places in each individual and relay event will score points.

The preliminaries and finals for each event will be held on the same day. The Thursday schedule includes the 500-yard freestyle, 200 individual medley, 50 freestyle, one meter diving, and 400 medley relay. Prelims are at 1:00 p.m., the finals at 8 p.m.

On Friday, the events are as follows: 200 butterfly, 200 freestyle, 100 breaststroke, 100 backstroke, 400 individual medley and 400-yard freestyle relay.

The final day's schedule includes the 100 freestyle, 200 backstroke, 200 breaststroke, 100 butterfly, 1650 freestyle, three meter diving and 800 freestyle relay.

South Gate School Plans Gala Carnie

DIABLO DAZE...

Mission Viejo Hi Talk

Last Wednesday, March 15, a Lettermen's Club for all Diablo lettermen was organized. "C" "B" JV and Varsity lettermen are eligible for membership to the club. We expect great things for this newest organization on the Mission roster.

Mission's first annual Spring Semi-Formal is scheduled for April 21 in the Student Lounge at Fullerton Junior College. A theme has not been selected yet, however committees are working hard to make this big dance a great success.

Term papers due last Friday for Ralph Welsh's junior classes kept the majority of juniors very busy until vacation. As the deadline grew closer more students mysteriously developed ailments and stayed home. However, on Friday, classes suddenly resumed to their normal size, everyone wearing green to celebrate their liberation of the work load.

Diablo's varstity baseball team came on strong against Laguna Beach High Wednesday, squeeking by the Artists a final score of 7-6. The junior varsity team also whipped Laguna, 6-3.

Hurling for the Diablo's varsity squad is Gary Ebercht. Catching his tosses is Mile Ahunada. John Noutary starts at first base, while George Dicks and Tony Camorena make up the keystone combination.

Denny Hanniford plays third base. The outfield is composed of Gary Dicks, Rick Morehouse and Val Moreno.

Girls' golden opportunity of the year is coming up April 7 with Missions' first annual Sadie Hawkins Day--a girl ask boy affair. Primary attraction of the day's festivities is the Sadie Hawkins Dance, that night. The dance will be sponsored by the principal girls' group on campus, GAA.

GAA volleyball players whomped Westminster High teamsters last Wednesday in an almost complete victory.

The Junior I Diablo team, playing Westminster's Senior I team, scored a total victory of three out of three games. Mission's Junior II team managed two wins in three outings.

The Junior III team was victorious over the Lions. The Sophomore I and the Freshman II teams were the only squads knocked off by the Westminster school.

Freshman I and Sophomore II also scored victories in the meet.

Irvine U's Cricket Ace Reaches 300 Milestone

Mike Brearley, the University of California, Irvine graduate student who captained England's first ever "under-25" cricket team in international matches in Pakistan, became the second cricketer since World War II to make more than 300 runs in a day when he accomplished the feat against a North Zone team at Peshawar.

The 24-year-old UCI research assistant in philosophy made 312 runs in a five and one-half hour batting stint for the Marylebone Cricket Club team. The feat is regarded as at least as difficult as hitting for home runs in a baseball game, and has been accomplished by only three other cricketers outside England.

His "triple century" performance was hailed by the Londom Times and the MCC captain was reported to have "batted with the grace of a master, excelling with cover drives, lofted pulls and square cuts."

Brearley led the MCC representative team in runs per inning, making an average of 132.16. His average was more than double that of the next highest batsman on the 14-man team.

El Toro Plays Host To Commercial Airlines To Dispurse Air Overflow

Newcomers to the El Toro air station may be startled by the sight of Marine Corps aircraft sharing air space and flight line facilities with giant commercial jets.

As the primary embarkation and debarkation point for Marine Corps personnel and equipment departing/arriving, from the states by air, El Toro is hosting an increasing number of commercial airliners on its air strips.

This influx of giant civilian planes has been the result of an organization that was founded years ago when it was discovered that military aircraft could no longer accommodate all its "passenger soldiers."

The Military Air Transportation System (MATS) was originated through the Department of Defense in the protection of national economy, for convenience, and due to a lack of seats available on military aircraft. It was assigned the task of drawing contracts with airline companies for transportation of a certain percentage of military personnel overseas and back.

Until January 1966 the organization was known as MATS, but it claims a new name now.

More familiar to most of us today is the Military Airlift Command (MAC), the present-day organization responsible for the assignment of commercial aircraft contracts.

The sole purpose of MAC, a U. S. Air Force command, is the movement of personnel. Their job involves receiving air requests from the Department of Defense and fulfilling these requests for the different service branches. When not enough military aircraft are available to accommodate the many transplacement battalions overseas, MAC calls on civilian airlines for assistance.

Last year, for the first time in history, American military airlift operations carried more than two million passengers in a single year.

This was not the only record for the airlift operations in 1966, as the Military Airlift Command (MAC) celebrated its first anniversary under its new name.

Marines returning to the United States directly from combat zones were once strangers to El Toro. The first direct flight from a Western Pacific area came in 1945, when Marine Aircraft Group 94 put down here.

At the present, however, El Toro is the major West Coast outlet for Marines departing by air for overseas duty in the Far East, accommodating an average of 500 outgoing Marines per week.

The majority of these Marines on replacement drafts are transported overseas via commercial airlines.

Although constituting a small percentage of the total air traffic at El Toro, civilian airlines create an overflow of passengers on their days of arrival. Officials say the average flight schedule brings 18 to 22 of the big civilian planes into El Toro per month.

Marine's Daughter Feted As OrCo Easter Seal Queen

Peggy Mann, the eight-year-old daughter of an El Toro Marine, has been selected by the Orange County Society for Crippled Children and Adults to represent Orange County in the 1967 Easter Seal Campaign.

Peggy's father, Gunnery Sergeant James W. Mann, is truckmaster for the Marine Wing Service Group 37.

Peggy, a third-grader at James Madison Elementary School in Santa Ana, has been undergoing therapy at the Orange County Rehabilitation Center since last September for Rheumatory Arthritis.

The center utilizes physical, occupational and speech therapy to help handicapped individuals overcome the effects of a number of crippling ailments.

According to an official at the center, Peggy, "symbol of the rehabilitation center," was selected on the basis of her youth and the fact that the center has aided her a great deal during her visits.

Peggy will assist the center in gaining publicity for the center and for the nation-wide campaign to raise funds through the sale of Easter Seals.

Viejo Instructor Gains Baby Boy

A boy named Michael Thomas Welsh, weighing eight pounds, 4 ozs, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Welsh of Tustin last week. Welsh, English Department Chairman at the new Mission Viejo High School, passed out cigars and candy to fellow faculty members.

This is the Welsh's sixth child, all boys.

LW Woman's Club Donates $1500 To UCI For Loans

Students To Borrow From Fund To Finance Constant Emergencies

The Rossmoor Woman's Club, member of the Orange District Federation of Woman's Clubs, has donated $1,500 to the University of California, Irvine for establishment of an emergency student loan fund in the club's name.

Mrs. Clemens Fromlath, president of Rossmoor Woman's Club, presented the $1,500 check to Robert S. Lawrence, Dean of Students at UCI, after she and Board of Directors members Mrs. A. E. Weninger, Mrs. Tom McChesney and Mrs. Glen Lohmuller met with Lawrence on the Irvine campus.

UC Irvine, the newest of the university's nine campuses, thus becomes one of more than 60 recipients of the philanthropic activities of RWC during the past two years.

Mrs. Weninger and Mrs. Jack Wray, club scholarship and public education chairmen, met with gifts and endowments officials at Irvine to clarify gift details before the motion to donate the funds was made and passed at a general membership meeting of the club.

Administration of the funds will be under the direction of Irvine's financial aids officer, Mrs. Bette Abs. The loans to students will be emergency in nature, interest free and based on repayment schedules of 30-60-90-days, depending upon individual circumstances.

If experience is a criteria, the loan fund probably will "turn" at least three times each academic year as students apply for emergency loans to cover fee expenses at registration time, unexpected automobile repairs, and book purchases while awaiting delayed checks.
